

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

Sharp Corporation (security code: 6753)

<Outlook Change>

Long-term Issuer Rating: BB-
Outlook: from Stable to Positive

Rationale

- (1) Sharp Corporation (the "Company") is a major home appliances manufacturer under the umbrella of the world's largest Taiwan-based EMS provider Hon Hai Precision Industry Company Ltd. ("Hon Hai"). Rating on the Company is based on the stand-alone evaluation and reflects Hon Hai's creditworthiness to a certain extent. In recent years, the Company has focused on the Branded business including home appliances, televisions, copiers, mobile phones, and personal computers, while pursuing asset-light initiatives in its device businesses, including liquid-crystal displays (LCDs). The Company has steadily carried out the shutdown of its Sakai plant for large LCDs and the divestiture of its camera module and semiconductor businesses and plans to cease production at Kameyama Plant 2 for small-and medium-size LCDs in December 2026.
- (2) Initiatives to make the device business more asset-light and implement structural reforms have reduced the risk of a significant deterioration in the Company's business performance. The Company projects operating profit to remain in the black for the third consecutive year in the fiscal year ending March 2027. The financial structure improved through the expansion of equity capital and the reduction of interest-bearing debt through asset sales. In April 2026, a substantial syndicated loan was successfully refinanced, and the disclosure of "material events and conditions related to the going concern assumption" was removed from the first-quarter financial results for FY2026. Meanwhile, the business environment remains generally challenging due to yen depreciation and rising component and material costs. It will be necessary to monitor whether the Company can continue to generate stable profits under these circumstances. Based on the above, JCR has affirmed the rating on the Company while changing the rating outlook from Stable to Positive.
- (3) Operating profit for FY2025 increased to 48.5 billion yen, up 77.6% year on year. This was primarily due to a reduction in losses related to display devices. The Company forecasts operating profit of 30 billion yen for FY2026. In August 2026, the Company revised its forecast downward from the previous estimate of 49.0 billion yen, reflecting the impact of rising resin and fuel prices and a revision to its assumed exchange rate. Although the display device business was also subject to a downward revision, the Company continues to plan a reduction in its operating loss. While the business environment is expected to remain challenging in FY2027, the suspension of production at Kameyama Plant 2 is expected to have a positive impact of approximately 9 billion yen on operating profit.
- (4) Equity capital increased to 279.9 billion yen at the end of FY2025 from 153.3 billion yen at the end of FY2024, and the equity ratio improved to 19.6% from 10.5%. Although increases in foreign currency translation adjustments and accumulated adjustments for retirement benefits made a meaningful contribution to the improvement in equity, the posting of net profit of 47.4 billion yen, supported by gains on the sale of fixed assets associated with asset-light initiatives, was also a major factor behind the increase in equity capital and improvement in the equity ratio. In addition, interest-bearing debt was reduced through cash inflows from the sale of fixed assets. For FY2026, further accumulation of equity capital is expected, and the current financial structure is likely to be maintained.

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

Also, in case of the financial products for which non-payment of interest/ principal is contractually permissible, the credit rating is subject to alteration if and when the likelihood of such non-payment is projected to increase or decrease.
