

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

NISSAN MOTOR CO., LTD. (security code: 7201)

<Affirmation>

Long-term Issuer Rating: A
Outlook: Negative

Rationale

- (1) NISSAN MOTOR CO., LTD. (the "Company") is an equity method affiliate of Renault S.A. ("Renault"). The Company is working on measures to enhance the three-party alliance with Renault and Mitsubishi Motors Corporation (security code: 7211). Each of the three companies intends to concentrate on its area of competitive edge while using the strength and support of the alliance in other areas. According to the business restructuring plan announced in May 2020, the Company aims to achieve an operating profit margin of 5% or more (based on continuation of proportionate consolidation of China JV) for the fiscal year ending March 2024 (FY2023) through measures including slashing global production capacity by 20% and fixed costs by 300 billion yen in comparison to those in FY2018, as well as actively launching new models, among others. The Company, which has already been ahead of peers in the area of EVs, announced that it will expand the electrification mix to more than 50% globally by FY2030, etc. in the long-term vision released in November 2021.
- (2) In line with the business restructuring plan, fixed cost reductions and improvements in the quality of sales are making progress and contributing to earnings improvement. Meanwhile, the auto business has been in the red since FY2019, affected by a semiconductor supply shortage and rising raw material prices. The current improvement in consolidated operating earnings is largely attributable to the mitigation of incentive (sales incentives) competition due to a delay in new car supply in the market and an increase in profits in the sales finance business stemming from the persistently high used car market prices. In terms of finances, net cash in the auto business continues to decline. JCR judged that it is necessary to observe whether the earnings capacity would stabilize, including the progress in rebuilding its U.S. business and the restoration of profitability in the auto business. Based on this, JCR has affirmed the rating on the Company with Negative outlook.
- (3) In FY2020, the Company recorded an operating loss of 150.7 billion yen, affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. For FY2021, it plans to move into profitability with an operating profit of 180 billion yen, largely buoyed by restrained incentives and an increase in profits in the sales finance business, while being negatively influenced from a chip shortage and rising raw material prices. The auto business posted an operating loss of 90.2 billion yen in the first half of FY2021, and whether it can maintain the earnings capacity when incentive competition intensifies with normalized new vehicles supply in the market is an issue to address. JCR will follow up on the progress in the reconstruction of the U.S. business, the effects of new model introductions, and the directions of performance and finances, among others.
- (4) On the financial side, the Company is at a net cash position of 552.3 billion yen as of the end of the second quarter of FY2021, but the position has been declining since peaking at approximately 1.7 trillion yen at the end of FY2017. The auto business had negative free cash flow in the first half of FY2021, and JCR will pay attention to its recovery from the second half period onward.

3 The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

Also, the changes in the quality of asset under the issuer's holding may affect the credit rating, since such changes could raise or lower the likelihood of future loss of the issuer's financial grounds. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change is large.
