

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

Mazda Credit, Inc. (security code: -)

<Affirmation>

Long-term Issuer Rating: A-
Outlook: Stable
CP: J-1

Rationale

- (1) Mazda Credit, Inc. (the “Company”) is a domestic sales finance company under the Mazda Group (the “Group”) and an equity-method affiliate of Mazda Motor Corporation (“Mazda”) and Toyota Financial Services Corporation (“TFS”). While Mazda and TFS each holds 50% voting rights in the Company, the Company has strong ties with Mazda in terms of business operations. JCR bases the Company’s long-term issuer rating on Mazda’s creditworthiness and, given Mazda’s strong involvement in the Company and the Company’s managerial importance in the Group, considers it to be at the same level as the creditworthiness of the Group, which is deemed to be equivalent to the rating of A-.
- (2) Mazda is strongly involved in the Company. It holds 50% voting rights in the Company and sends multiple directors, including the president and CEO, to the latter, which indicates their strong unity managerial decision-making. The Company is managerially highly important in the Group. It occupies a strategically and functionally important position as it plays a role in supporting Mazda’s automobile sales by providing financial services.
- (3) The Company has a certain level of market position and competitiveness in the auto credit business, backed by Mazda’s selling ability. Its core product Mazda Sky Plan is residual-value credit and is competitive in that future residual value is guaranteed. Despite a decline in Mazda’s domestic new car sales volume due to semiconductor supply shortages and the discovery of fraudulent certification testing, the Company’s credit transaction volume and operating assets remain firm.
- (4) Earnings capacity is fairly good. The credit business, a source of recurring revenue, accounts for a large part of it and is highly stable. Yet, as financing for new cars accounts for nearly 90% of operating revenue, JCR will keep an eye on the Company’s future efforts aimed at diversifying earnings sources. Ordinary income remains firm in the 6 billion yen range but is expected to shrink in the fiscal year ending March 2026 due in part to growth in expenses associated with the Company’s data center migration. That said, given, among others, the steady performance of financing for high-priced vehicles, JCR assumes that the Company can maintain a certain level of profits for a while longer.
- (5) Assets are highly sound. Primary operating assets are auto credit receivables from individuals, which are well-diversified into small amounts. The Company controls credit risk under the prudent credit management policy. Delinquent receivables ratio remains low and stable, and bad debt-related expenses are small relative to operating assets. Even though the Company promotes residual-value credit, it does not have any residual value risk.
- (6) Capital adequacy is good. Although internal reserves are not accumulating so much because of large amounts of dividends, capital adequacy ratio adjusted by JCR is high, and sufficient capital adequacy relative to risks is secured. There are no particular concerns about liquidity. In terms of indirect financing, the Company has a solid financing base as it makes stable transactions with a number of financial institutions, including megabanks and regional banks. It also has direct financing means including receivables securitization and is striving to diversify financing sources by, for instance, considering the utilization of commercial paper.

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

Also, the changes in the quality of asset under the issuer's holding may affect the credit rating, since such changes could raise or lower the likelihood of future loss of the issuer's financial grounds.
