

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

Moya Holdings Asia Limited (security code: -)

<Affirmation>

Foreign Currency Long-term Issuer Rating:      BBB-
Outlook:    Stable

Rationale

- (1) Moya Holdings Asia Limited (MHAL) is a holding company of the private Moya group (Group) that operates water supply business in Indonesia. MHAL is based in Singapore and is listed on the Singapore Stock Exchange. Given the strong unity of the entire Group, JCR incorporates the creditworthiness of the Group into the rating on MHAL. The rating is supported by (i) the public significance of MHAL responsible for the spread of water supply in Indonesia, (ii) its stable income based on long-term service contracts with the country's municipal water utilities (PDAMs), (iii) its solid business base backed by exclusive water supply operations in the commissioned areas and its position as the country's top private water supplier, and (iv) its track records of management and operation of water supply facilities up to the present time. Moreover, MHAL belongs to the Salim Group, a major conglomerate in Indonesia, and enjoys benefits as its member. On the other hand, the rating is constrained by the risk of the government's regulatory changes regarding water supply business. It is also constrained by the company's large investment burdens as it aggressively expands its supply capacity under the government's plan to accelerate the spread of water supply. However, water consumption by households which account for the majority of the company's customers has been growing even despite the COVID-19 pandemic. Its impact on the company's business performance has been kept contained. JCR holds that MHAL will enjoy a steady growth of earnings on a medium-term expansion of the country's water demand. For these reasons, JCR has affirmed its rating with a Stable outlook.
- (2) MHAL established its position as Indonesia's top private water supplier following the acquisition in 2017 of its rival operator. Furthermore, it took over the country's fourth-largest private operator in March 2020, boosting its share of supply capacity among all private operators to 40%. The company's water supply business is undertaken by its seven project subsidiaries, which operate in eastern Jakarta and suburban areas. Of these, Aetra Air Jakarta (AAJ) which was put under its umbrella in 2017 accounts for approximately 50% of its total supply capacity and 62% of its consolidated revenue in 2020. Those subsidiaries conclude long-term business contracts, effective for either 20 or 25 years, with regional PDAMs under the BOT formula. With its contract due to run out in 2023, AAJ is currently negotiating its renewal with PAM Jaya, the PDAM in Jakarta. But the contracts concluded by all other subsidiaries will remain effective for more than 10 years. Under the contracts, the charges paid by PDAMs for the services provided by the project subsidiaries are determined to cover the cost of facility management and maintenance, the cost of capital expenditures and a specified proportion of an annual inflation rate. This enables MHAL to secure a specified level of profit.
- (3) The company's consolidated financial results have been greatly expanding since its major acquisition in 2017. In FY2020, it expects both its sales and profit to keep growing on increased water supply to households resulting from more telecommuting as well as an expanded supply capacity brought by the acquisition. Meanwhile, when AAJ renews its contract, the contract format is expected to change from the current full-service model, in which it receives both wholesale and retail revenues, to the bulk-water supply model, in which it receives only wholesale revenue. JCR considers that MHAL's earnings is expected to keep expanding in the medium term on strong water demand at home. For the time being, JCR will closely monitor the future developments of the negotiation for the contract renewal between AAJ and PAM Jaya, and will reflect them onto the rating as necessary.
- (4) As MHAL used its ample cash for the acquisition in March 2020, the deal had only a limited impact on its financial structure. As of the end of June 2020, its equity-to-asset ratio and consolidated net DER excluding non-controlling interests stood sound at 44.2% and a 0.60, respectively. JCR holds that its financial structure might deteriorate, depending on progress and scale of its expansion plan.

Currently all its interest-bearing debt is rupiah-denominated and foreign exchange risks remain contained in the absence of mismatch with its revenue currency. The company plans to issue a corporate bond to raise funds needed to refinance its existing bank loans and invest in new facilities. Going forward, MHAL is prepared to aggressively expand its business in keeping with the government plans and its large investment burdens mainly associated with AAJ are expected to continue for a while. JCR will closely monitor the impact of the future business expansion on its financial condition.

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating herewith presented by JCR is its summary opinion with regard to the likelihood of given debt payment and hence not necessarily a perfect representation of such likelihood. The credit rating is not intended to estimate the probability of default or the loss on given default, either.
- The objective of the credit rating herewith presented does not include any concerns other than the likelihood of debt payment, such as risks of price changes, market liquidity, etc.
- The credit rating herewith presented is necessary to be reviewed along with possible changes of the issuer of rated objects in its business performance and/ or circumstances which include regulatory environment, and hence subject to possible alteration.
