

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

ZENKOKU HOSHO Co., Ltd. (security code: 7164)

<Affirmation>

Long-term Issuer Rating: A
Outlook: Stable
Subordinated Loan: BBB+

Rationale

- (1) ZENKOKU HOSHO Co., Ltd. (the “Company”) is an independent guaranty company for housing loans. Forming business partnerships with more than 90% of regional banks, shinkin banks and credit unions, it has a business base centered on regional financial institutions. It also ties up with leading regional banks, major city banks and online banks, and its guarantees outstanding as of September 30, 2024 came to as much as over 17 trillion yen, including those of group companies. Factors reflected in the issuer rating include: the Company’s business base as a top-class housing loan guaranty company in Japan; stable and fairly good earnings capacity; well-diversified and sound guarantee portfolio; and decent capital adequacy relative to guarantees outstanding. JCR will keep an eye on how the Company will balance the expansion of guarantees outstanding and shareholder returns with the accumulation of retained earnings.
- (2) Earnings capacity is fairly good. ROA based on ordinary income with guarantees outstanding considered is in the 0.2% range but is nevertheless stable, and the profit level is also high. Ordinary income is on a constant rise thanks to an increase in operating revenues with the expansion of guarantees outstanding, cuts in expenses and low credit costs. The amount of guarantees granted is stable, and guarantees outstanding are now growing sharply because of the M&A of a bank-affiliated guarantee subsidiary. Given, among others, that the use of guarantees by existing business partners, including leading regional banks, is increasing, JCR assumes that guarantees outstanding will keep expanding into the future and operating revenues will continue growing. As the Company has decent capacities to absorb credit costs with periodic revenue, it is likely to keep attaining stable net income.
- (3) Assets including guarantees outstanding remain sound. The guarantee portfolio is diversified into small amounts, covering the entire nation, and, with low subrogation repayment rate, credit costs are stable. Because the balance of guarantees outstanding is large, even a small rise in subrogation repayment rate tends to significantly affect credit costs; moreover, changes in the environment during the long loan term, including economic stagnation and interest rate hikes, could add to credit costs. Therefore, JCR will keep an eye on future developments from a medium- to long-term perspective. As regards assets under management, cash and deposits account for approximately 30% of the total, and bonds approximately 70%. Corporate bonds, which account for the bulk of bonds, are limited to highly rated bonds to minimize credit risk.
- (4) Capital adequacy is commensurate with the rating. JCR views the size of capital to be vital as a risk buffer against losses during long guarantee periods. The ratio of capital, including hybrid securities, to total assets, including guarantees outstanding, as of September 30, 2024 stood at around 1.4% in real terms, which indicates that the Company secures a decent capital level against the guarantee portfolio diversified into small amounts. The recent sharp increase in guarantees outstanding is putting downward pressure on capital adequacy ratio, but the decline is expected to be marginal. Even though the Company is increasing shareholder returns, it intends to give due consideration to the sufficiency of its capital when making such returns. Therefore, JCR predicts that the capital level commensurate with the rating will be maintained.

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating herewith presented by JCR is its summary opinion with regard to the likelihood of given debt payment and hence not necessarily a perfect representation of such likelihood. The credit rating is not intended to estimate the probability of default or the loss on given default, either.
- The objective of the credit rating herewith presented does not include any concerns other than the likelihood of debt payment, such as risks of price changes, market liquidity, etc.
- The credit rating herewith presented is necessary to be reviewed along with possible changes of the issuer of rated objects in its business performance and/ or circumstances which include regulatory environment, and hence subject to possible alteration.

The credit rating is subject to alteration if the issuer increases/ decreases its debt/ capital or vice versa and thereby makes its individual debt payment liability less or more bearable and its loss absorption capacity into the future decreased or increased. Also, the changes in the quality of asset under the issuer's holding may affect the credit rating, since such changes could raise or lower the likelihood of future loss of the issuer's financial grounds. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually by a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change in the financial grounds and/ or asset quality is large.

C) Liquidity Positions

The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change is large.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment and Non-Payment Forgiven by Contract

Also, in case of the financial products for which non-payment of interest/ principal is contractually permissible, the credit rating is subject to alteration if and when the likelihood of such non-payment is projected to increase or decrease.
