

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

Central Tanshi FX Co., Ltd. (security code: -)

<Affirmation>

Long-term Issuer Rating: BBB+
Outlook: Stable

Rationale

- (1) Central Tanshi FX Co., Ltd. (the “Company”) is an FX margin trading intermediary belonging to the Central Tanshi Group (the “Group”). JCR determines the Company’s long-term issuer rating based on the Group’s creditworthiness, which is deemed to be equivalent to the rating of A. Central Tanshi Co., Ltd. owns over 90% voting rights in the Company, including indirect holdings, and, given also their strong unity in terms of business administration, JCR views that the degree of Central Tanshi’s involvement in the Company is high.
- (2) Over-the-counter FX transactions have been brisk in recent years, which is positively affecting the earnings of FX margin trading intermediaries. Fluctuations in exchange rates have been drastic since 2022 partly because of widening interest rate differentials between Japan and overseas, and the market transaction volume has been staying at a high level. Wider interest rate differentials are also resulting in a high level of swap point earnings. That said, the transaction volume may shrink depending on exchange rate fluctuations. As strong downward pressure on profit margins per currency unit traded persists due to intense competition, etc., the environment remains challenging for securing stable earnings.
- (3) The Company ranks in the middle in the industry for FX trading volume and has a certain customer base. It has branded itself as an FX broker strong in emerging market currencies, particularly the Mexican peso. Deposited margin and trading volume had been on the decline in recent years due to intensifying competition with other companies and a sharp drop in the Mexican peso but turned upward in the second half of the fiscal year ended March 2026 (FY2025). As a likely contributing factor here, the Company has been strengthening the product features of currency pairs with strong customer demand, such as the U.S. dollar and Turkish lira. Earnings capacity is now improving. Even though both revenue and profits shrank in FY2024 due in part to a decline in the trading volume, they turned around in FY2025 thanks to an increase in investment income on deposited margin driven by interest rate hikes and the earnings enhancement initiatives including the revision of cover methods. Given that interest rates are likely to keep rising, JCR assumes that profits will continue to be underpinned by investment income on deposited margin for a while longer. Attention will be paid to see whether the Company can maintain and expand FX income by expanding the customer base.
- (4) The Company is managing risks appropriately. It contains exchange risk by, for instance, making cover transactions after receiving customer orders and strictly controlling a limit on positions held. It controls customer credit risk by taking such measures as adopting a mandatory loss-cut system. No major bad debt losses were incurred even at the time of rapid changes in exchange rates in the past. Operational risk associated with systems is also managed appropriately.
- (5) Equity capital is reasonably large. Capital adequacy ratio at the end of March 2026 stood decent at 1,168%, and the capital margin is large compared to that of the peers. Looking at the status of securing liquidity, the Company covers margin deposits to counterparties basically with cash and deposits, as well as LGs (letters of guarantee) from its banks. Liquidity necessary for cover transactions is also sufficiently secured, partly through the setting of overdraft facilities.

3

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating herewith presented is necessary to be reviewed along with possible changes of the issuer of rated objects in its business performance and/ or circumstances which include regulatory environment, and hence subject to possible alteration.

The credit rating is subject to alteration if the issuer increases/ decreases its debt/ capital or vice versa and thereby makes its individual debt payment liability less or more bearable and its loss absorption capacity into the future decreased or increased. Also, the changes in the quality of asset under the issuer's holding may affect the credit rating, since such changes could raise or lower the likelihood of future loss of the issuer's financial grounds. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually by a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change in the financial grounds and/ or asset quality is large.

C) Liquidity Positions

The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change is large.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment and Non-Payment Forgiven by Contract

The credit rating is subject to alteration if there is a change in the rated debt's status in the order of seniority relative to other debts caused by the improvement/ deterioration of the issuer's financial condition. Also, in case of the financial products for which non-payment of interest/ principal is contractually permissible, the credit rating is subject to alteration if and when the likelihood of such non-payment is projected to increase or decrease.
