

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

NEC Corporation (security code: 6701)

<Rating Change>

Long-term Issuer Rating: from A+ to AA-
Outlook: Stable

Rationale

- (1) NEC Corporation (NEC) is engaged in IT services as its core business, such as system integration (SI), maintenance and services. NEC has the world's top-level technologies in facial authentication, iris recognition, fingerprint identification, etc. It also handles network infrastructure and system equipment, SI, and maintenance in the sector of national security. Although highly relying on domestic operations for sales, NEC has established a stable blue-chip customer base. In the Mid-term Management Plan 2025, NEC is aiming to achieve earnings growth through both growth business and base business, positioning Digital government/Digital finance (DG/DF), Global 5G and Core DX as its growth businesses. Additionally, driven by increased government defense budgets under the Defense Buildup Program, business growth in the national security sector is currently progressing.
- (2) Quantitative performance levels, including profitability, has been improving at a rapid pace. The business environment for domestic IT services business is generally favorable, buoyed by trends such as DX, and NEC's performance is strong. Efforts to improve profitability, including the SI Model Transformation, have been also bearing fruit. In addition, orders in the national security sector have been on the rise, and performance in this area is also expanding. Furthermore, efforts to improve low-profit businesses on a company-wide basis have been progressing. The strengthening of the financial base is also actually progressing. Based on the above, JCR has upgraded NEC's rating by one notch with Stable outlook.
- (3) Operating profit (IFRS) for the fiscal year ended March 2025 (FY2024) was 256.4 billion yen (up 36.4% from FY2023), marking the third consecutive increase of the profit and strengthening the profit increasing trend. Although expenses were recorded to resolve quality issues for the submarine systems, domestic IT services drove the overall performance. Performance of the national security sector also increased. NEC projects an increase of the operating profit also for FY2025. Solid performance is assumed to continue, centering on IT services, including DG/DF. JCR considers that impact of US tariff policies on the business environment will be limited due to the increasing strategic importance of IT investment.
- (4) Operating cash flow for FY2024 increased to 344.4 billion yen (271.2 billion yen for FY2023). Despite an increase in debt and a decrease in capital surplus due to changes in equity, both of which were associated with the tender offer for NEC Networks & System Integration Corporation, NEC maintained a sound financial structure thanks partly to the increased retained earnings. At the end of FY2024, ratio of equity attributable to owners of the parent was 45.2% (45.3% at the end of FY2023) and net DER was 0.04x (0.04x at the end of FY2023), both of which remained largely unchanged. Although NEC positions M&A at the core of its growth strategy, JCR evaluates that NEC's financial capability, including cash flow generation capability, has further increased.

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

- The objective of the credit rating herewith presented does not include any concerns other than the likelihood of debt payment, such as risks of price changes, market liquidity, etc.
- The credit rating herewith presented is necessary to be reviewed along with possible changes of the issuer of rated objects in its business performance and/ or circumstances which include regulatory environment, and hence subject to possible alteration.
