

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit ratings.

Hungary (security code: -)

<Assignment>

Bonds: A-

Rationale

The ratings are mainly supported by the country's developed and export-oriented economic structure, strengthened economic base resulting from the effective economic policies taken by the government and the central bank and improved fiscal deficit brought by a stabilizing revenue base. On the other hand, the ratings remain constrained by the large external and government debts, though they have been constantly shrinking in terms of GDP. The government has been promoting appropriate economic and fiscal policies. While containing fiscal deficit and reducing the government debt/GDP ratio since 2012, it has been implementing a spate of measures to strengthen the country's economic base. Accordingly, the economy had grown at a relatively high annual pace of around 5% on solid domestic demand before the pandemic of COVID19. The government swiftly took strict measures to contain the pandemic and introduced a large scale economic measures in cooperation with the central bank. With these measures, JCR expects that the economic contraction will be rather eased around 4% in 2020. However, the fiscal deficit and government debt will grow at around 7% and 70% of GDP respectively. The government is committed to fiscal consolidation from 2021. Barring a prolonged effect of the pandemic, the economy and public finance are likely to improve from 2021 onward, backed by the country's reinforced economic and fiscal base. Although the number of confirmed case is increasing again recently, the number of deaths is limited and strict restrictions of movement are unlikely to be imposed. Meanwhile, the proceeds from the green bonds will be invested in six eligible categories such as renewable energy and energy efficiency according to the government's green bond framework.

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Economic Base

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to the issuing government's ability to maintain/expand the economic base into the future with maintaining soundness of financial systems.

B) Fiscal Base

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly correlated to fiscal balance, public debt and other factors of the issuing government's fiscal condition.

C) External Positions

D) Social and Political Bases and Economic Policy

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to the social and political stability, effectiveness of economic and monetary policies as well as international economics.

E) Related Parties' Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Government

The likelihood of a given debt payment is affected by the stance of the credit enhancement provider and other related parties with regard to their stance of support/ assistance for the issuing government.

F) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuing government's will, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same government in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by international practice, etc.
