March 13, 2024

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

Aica Kogyo Company, Limited (security code: 4206)

<Rating Change>

Long-term Issuer Rating: from A to A+
Outlook: from Positive to Stable

Rationale

- (1) Aica Kogyo Company, Limited (the "Company") is a major manufacturer of resin building materials. It offers chemical products and laminates / building materials based on its synthetic technology for resins and adhesives. In the Laminates & Building Materials segment, centered on melamine decorative panels, it holds the top share in the domestic market having excellent design and high performance as its strengths. In recent years, it has been focusing on expansion of overseas business aiming to capture demand in the Asia region, a growing market. In the Chemical Products segment, Three Major Projects in China (construction of new plants in Guangdong, Fujian and Nanjing) are underway in AICA Asia Pacific Holding group, and the Laminates & Building Materials segment also working on increasing production capacity and strengthening sales.
- (2) The Company has been achieving stable profit growth, and JCR views that the direction will still be maintained going forward. In the mainstay Laminates & Building Materials business in Japan, sales are growing for AS (AICA Solution) products that contribute to resolving various social issues, and it also has room for growth through expanding new business domains such as ceilings and floors. In the overseas business, the scope of business is expected to continue to expand for both segments of Chemical Products and Laminates & Building Materials through growth investments, and JCR views that profitability is also expected to rise through sales of local production for local consumption products and high-value-added products responding to customer needs, among others. Aggressive investment stance will continue; however, financial soundness remains unchanged. Based on the above, JCR has upgraded the rating by one notch to A+ with Stable outlook.
- (3) For the fiscal year ending March 2024 (FY2023), the Company projects a highest operating profit ever of 24.5 billion yen, up 19.2% from the previous fiscal year. This is mainly because of progress in price pass-on measures for both the Chemical Products and Laminates & Building Materials. Sales expansion of high-value-added products primarily for AS products, an earnings improvement in low profitable businesses, cost reductions, etc. will also positively work for the performance. Profit margin, which declined in relation to cost increases and a change in sales mix, is also expected to recover to over 10%. For FY2024 and onward, expansion of the top line and a rise in profitability can be anticipated through realizing effects of investments in Japan and abroad. JCR will pay attention to progress in growth strategies including inorganic one.
- (4) Financial structure is favorable. The Company has been maintaining a growth trend in profits over the long term and is making progress in equity capital accumulation. It has ample cash and deposit on hand, providing a good financing capacity. In the new medium-term management plan (FY2023 through FY2026), a total investment of 60 billion yen for four years (sum of capital and business investments) is projected. Therefore, growth investments are expected to remain high. The Company may need to procure a certain amount of funds from external parties depending on the details of investments; however, financial balance will unlikely deteriorate largely in light of its financial management policy to date.

3 The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4
